What is work?

When you go to work you become an employee, the company who employs you is your employer. You will be asked to sign a contract to agree how you will behave during your working hours. You will need to have a signature when you sign your contract, this is your name written in such a way that you will recognise and says you agree to the document you have signed. You will get paid a salary, this is the yearly amount you will be paid, and it will be split equally into either weekly or monthly wages.
